

ASHE NURSERY CONE HOOK

Johnsey King

Nurseryman, Ashe Nursery, U. S. Forest Service Brooklyn, Mississippi

Given below is a drawing of a hook found useful by cone collecting crews at Ashe Nursery. This tool is made in the nursery's shop from discarded crosscut saw blades.

The cone hook is cut from an old cross cut saw blade with an acetylene torch. Holes are drilled for 1/4" stove bolts. The handle is drilled to fit and the blade bolted to one side. The edges shown are sharpened and the cone hook is ready to operate.
